

A photograph of two women in Victorian-style clothing. One woman, dressed as a maid in a black and white outfit with a large white apron and a lace-trimmed bonnet, stands holding a white parasol. The other woman, dressed in a white short-sleeved top and a long purple skirt, sits on an ornate black metal bench, also holding a white parasol. They are positioned in front of a red brick building with stone steps and a large green tree to the right. The scene is brightly lit, suggesting a sunny day.

*“Your hand, please, milady.
‘Tis a perfect day for a tea outside.”*

“Life is too short not to enjoy a nice day outside being who you want to be and wearing what you want to wear.”

A woman in a black and white maid dress with a large white apron and a white headband is standing and serving a woman sitting on a wicker sofa. The woman sitting is wearing a white short-sleeved blouse with a black bow and a dark blue skirt. She is holding a small plate with a cake and a fork. In front of them is a dark wooden table with a silver tray holding a white teapot and two cups. The setting is an outdoor garden with a dark metal pergola structure, a brick wall covered in green ivy, and a large potted fern. A green and white patterned cushion is on the sofa.

Chicago Landmark
Wheeler-Kohn House
Otis L. Wheelock, architect
 1870

A rare survivor of the stately mansions built on the Near South Side prior to the Great Chicago Fire of 1871; this also ranks as one of the city's best examples of Second Empire architecture.

Built by banker Calvin Wheeler, it was remodeled in the mid-1880s by clothier Joseph Kohn, who added the window bay and elaborate front-porch in order to compete with the newer mansions on nearby Prairie Avenue.

Designated on February 5, 1998

Afterword about this fanbook

Thank you for viewing my third milky ange unofficial fanbook!

Yes, it is a third book. Third! I never thought I would be publishing a thrid one.

For this shoot, I wanted to try something I have never tried before. One was to have someone else with me in the photos. Another was to do the shoot in a more public setting with unique props like horse carriage. Thanks to a wonderful team of talented individuals, I was able to make my plan a reality!

The shoot took place inside the ornate Wheeler Mansion located in Chicago, Illinois as well as in the public streets of downtown Chicago. The same mansion appeared twice in the first volume, but this time, the shoot took place in early summer with a more lush and vibrant scenery. The owner of the mansion was very happy to see us again, and was very willing to let us use the mansion for the third time!

My beautiful classic and natural makeup and hair-do is again the work of Amy Banas, my favorite onsite hair and makeup artist! The pretty and adorable lady of the house was acted by my friend Marlo Louden. Marlo is a professional photographer and has taken numerous cosplay photos for me in the past, but she is also an excellent cosplayer. This time, she had agreed to join me as a co-star of this shoot! Jovanka Novakovic from Bauwerks Photography was my photographer. Jovanka took some impressive non-cosplay portraits for me in the past, and has agreed to shoot for me and Marlo this time. Antique Horse and Carriage eagerly provided us with a horse and carriage for the shoot. The carriage operator Cathy McFadden and her horse Stella gave us an excellent ride through the Windy City! They were both very kind and friendly, letting us direct them as we took photos while ensuring the safety of everyone involved despite busy downtown traffic surrounding us.

The entire team made the shoot a very fun and pleasant experience, and I am very, very grateful for everyone who came together to make this shoot a reality!

When I started cosplaying, I never imagined I would meet so many good people who are willing to help me make my vision come true! My last thank you goes to milky ange, whose quality outfits have made me start cosplaying, and as a result, allowed me to meet so many wonderful people! 😊

See you again in my forth book!
